The President's Notes

Lou Haynes (bdhaynes@one.net)

Well, Spring has sprung and the fish are anxiously waiting for you. If you haven't been out after them yet, it's time to dust off the rod and reel, tie on a fresh fly and go! There are plenty of good fish around waiting to do battle with your wits. As I remember, last year the fish won most of the time. If it weren't for those eager-to-bite, little ones, there wouldn't have been much for me to brag about. But I found the answer to the little fish problem in a book entitled The Fisherman's Book of Wisdom: "Nothing Grows Faster Than A Fish From The Time He Bites Until He Gets Away". Works for me!

Be sure to keep an eye on the club calendar as there are many programs coming up. Besides our regular monthly meetings, there are fishing trips, casting classes, public education events and conservation outings scheduled over the next few weeks. Check the BUFFER for the most up-to-date calendar as our scheduled events change frequently. Take advantage of the opportunities and go on one or more club trips. If you want to take part in any of these activities but don't know who to contact, please call or e-mail me or any of our board members. Let us know what your interest is and we will get you in contact with the right person to get you started. Consider volunteering some of your time to help on one or more of our educational or outreach programs. Remember, the more you give to the club, the more you will benefit from its great resources.

As you know by now, the "Cabin Relief Banquet" scheduled on March 8th was SNOWED OUT! The banquet has been rescheduled for Friday evening April 11th. Some tickets are still available so bring a friend, win some great prizes and have a great time. Remember reservations are required. Contact Jim Boude for tickets and details (513-290-7361; jboude@cinci.rr.com). The 2007 Fly-Fisher-Of-The-Year and the Board of Director Awards will be presented at the banquet.

The Board has been working on up-dating the BUFF by-laws and will ask the membership to vote on the changes at the May general meeting. Check the accompanying article that summarizes the proposed changes.

April Meeting Program

Find the Macros - Find the Fish!

Anne Lyon

Water Quality Project Director - Greenacres Foundation

Come learn about the stream dwelling insects and other aquatic life that make up the diet of your favorite game fish. Fly fishers like us try to imitate the look and movements of these organisms when we tie flies but what do we really know about these critters? Did you know the numbers and type of macroinvertebrates living in a stream can tell even you how clean the stream is? Anne will introduce us to the wonderful world of stream macroinvertebrates.

Proposed Changes to the BUFF By-Laws

Lou Haynes

The board of directors has been working to up-date the club by-laws so they are consistent with the day-to-day operations of the club. The membership will be asked to vote on the proposed changes at the May general meeting. A summary of the proposed changes follows:

- 1). A significant amount of word-smithing was done to remove some of the legal terminology to make the document more reader friendly.
- 2). Some Articles have been reordered to a more logical flow of information.
- 3). After thorough discussion with legal council, the committee recommends dropping the need for the signing of any waivers (trips or otherwise) by members.
- 4). The amount of time before a member is delinquent on moneys owed to the club has been extended from 60 days to 75 days. This allows membership dues to be paid at the March general meeting before the membership becomes delinquent and is deleted from the membership roster. As now written in the by-laws, memberships become delinquent on March 1 if the dues are not paid.
- 5). Changes “all” membership yearly dues dates to run from January 1 to December 31. Currently, membership dues dates are for one year from the date joined. This change will greatly simplify the Membership Chairperson’s duties.
- 6). Changes the wording for Assessments to be made on a “membership” basis rather than on an “each member” basis. As stated in our current by-laws each member would owe an equal assessment; consequently, family memberships would owe an assessment amount for each member listed on the membership roster, including children who are considered members by the current by-laws. The proposed change would levy one assessment amount on each membership. In addition, for any assessment vote, each membership would be allowed only “one” vote. This means that family memberships that have more than one eligible voter (18 yrs or older) are allowed only one vote, not multiple votes. This voting stipulation holds for assessment voting “only”; anyone 18 yrs and above can vote on all other voting issues.
- 6). Shortens the BOD nomination process from 4 months to 2 months to meet our current mode of operation. Current by-laws state the BOD nominations will start in September. The proposed change initiates the process at the November general meeting and keeps nominations open until December 31.

Note: Over the past few years the BOD has slowly drifted away from some of the provisions stated in the current by-laws. The proposed changes will update the by-laws to meet the current way we do business.

The current By-Laws are posted on the club website under “About Us/Club Info”. A copy of the Proposed By-Laws is posted on the website “Home Page” along with this article summarizing the proposed changes. Please contact me if you would like to discuss any of the proposed changes. Also let me know if you do not have access to the BUFF website and would like a copy of the proposed by-laws to review. I will gladly send you a copy.

Changing Times

Daryl Crowley – FFF member of the West Michigan Hacklers Club – (from FFF Clubwire)

Aging is insidious. It creeps up on us. While some of us age slowly with grace and some seem to age rapidly, none of us are immune and we find that our approach to fishing inevitably changes as a result. Like it or not, we are victims of time and our approach to fly fishing reflects that victimization. I don't mean to imply that we fall apart and everything goes to hell-in-a-hand-basket: but the effects of aging definitely change our approach to fishing.

Most of us, long before true old-age, find that we can no longer find the eye on a hook. By middle age, finding the eye on a #22 hook often requires the addition of those cute little clip-on magnifying glasses. These are small and somewhat discreet and we can claim that they are really just for #24 flies in the waning light of day. But increasingly we find that they are also a big help on #12 hooks at high noon. By the time we add bifocals to our regular prescription we are again OK on #12 hooks in daylight but the magnifiers are still required on #22s or even #16s. Even with my bifocals I find that I can either see the eye of a #20 hook or the 6X tippet, but not both at the same time. Now all this is not such a big deal, as long as we have the magnifiers with us, but should we forget them we find ourselves in the last light of day, during a prime hatch of #22 caddis, fishing a #14. We rationalize that we are really looking for that one outsized fish that relishes a larger meal. But in truth we are fishing the #14 because there is no way in heaven or earth that we can possibly tie on a #22 without the magnifiers and a strong flashlight. Eventually #22s are just out, then #20s, and so on. I suspect at some point we just tie a #4 streamer on our 20lb tippet before we leave for the river and we fish with that until we lose it, and then go home.

Hearing loss starts to impact us as well. It's always hard to understand someone over the babble of even small rapids, but at some point it becomes impossible. Your buddy might be shouting a dire warning or communicating what the "hot" fly is but try as you might, cupping your hand to your ear you can't make out a word. Finally you smile, wave, and nod in some sort of agreement pretending to understand and then mumble to yourself: "I have no idea what in the hell you're saying". Even when you can hear a nice fish rise, you can't determine where he was and you have to stop fishing and just watch so you know whether to move upstream or downstream. You know it has become serious when they blast the warning horn below a hydroelectric dam, and you assume it was just a car way out on the highway.

Aging muscle and bone have huge impact on our fishing style. Aggressive wading through deep rocky runs, once a source of pride and veritable necessity, now seems foolhardy. You begin to avoid walking in certain areas that require you to get your old legs over a submerged log because if you go there now you will become hopelessly pinned against the log with no way out. Rocky boulder strewn runs are now less desirable places to fish. It's easy to convince ourselves that such highly oxygenated waters harbor only small fish and the shallow, sandy, easy-to-wade places are surely where the big ones hang out. I don't have the stamina that I once had, so I often start the day a little later, leave a little earlier, and I don't hike as far. That certainly has an impact on my fishing. We used to joke that we were "so tired from fighting fish we need to take a break", now we find that we actually do need to take a break.

My memory doesn't function as well as it once did either. Not that it was ever great, but I'm pretty sure it was better than it is now, at least it seems like I remember it being better. Memory could have a dramatic impact like; like not remembering how to cast, but it's generally more subtle, like not remembering to bring the stuff you really need; like your sunglasses. If I go out in the morning, before the sun is high in the sky, I'm just as apt to leave my sunglasses in the car. Now I can't see as well into the water, so I'm even less likely to wade into difficult waters because I can't see submerged obstructions. I can't see the fish as well either so I probably pass by some really huge fish in plain sight, all because I forgot my sunglasses. Or I forget a critical box of flies, my spare reel, my dry fly floatant, medications, magnifying glasses, bug repellent toilet paper, or a number of other things that will have a huge impact on my day of fishing by their absence. Obviously the effects of aging impacts everything we do, and fly fishing is no exception: we don't play the game in the same way as we did when we were young. Some may say that as we get older we "fish smarter not harder". There is some truth to that. We have to fish smarter because we can't fish as hard, since we are not as able and probably left critical gear at home. But despite the impact of aging on our fishing style, we seem to catch just as many fish or we at least tend to be more satisfied with what we do catch. We don't need to catch as many fish since we have long since forgotten just how many we've caught over the years and we place more emphasis now on a quality day rather than the quantity of fish we catch, and I'm pretty sure that is a good thing: I just can't seem to remember why.
